Cal State East Bay’s Department of Communicative Sciences and Disorders is pleased to present

Stuttering: Insights from research and guidance for intervention

Saturday October 21, 2017

12:00 pm to 4:00 p.m.

Registration
- Professional $60
- Student $20
- Alumni Free

Seminar description: Stuttering can be challenging to treat in both adults and children. It is also a disorder that can be devastating for those who are affected. This course will provide an update on research and knowledge about stuttering and guidance for treating and managing the disorder. Participants will have an opportunity to have conversations with individuals who stutter to learn about the impact of living with this disorder and their experiences with intervention.

Upon seminar completion, participants will be able to:
- Discuss risk factors for developing stuttering and the likelihood of experiencing persistent stuttering
- Discuss developmental features associated with stuttering
- Identify strategies for managing and treating stuttering in adults and children
- Develop a deeper understanding of the psychological and emotional impact of stuttering

Presenters:
- Dr. Ai Leen Choo is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Communicative Sciences and Disorders at the Cal State East Bay. She received her PhD in Speech and Hearing Sciences from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and her postdoctoral training at the University of Michigan. Her teaching and research interests are in the topic of stuttering. Her research is focused on understanding the underlying bases of persistent stuttering and recovery, and developing effective treatments for adults and children who stutter.

- Bailey Levis is a speech-language pathologist with expertise in stuttering. He is a Bay Area native who came to the field of Speech and Language Pathology by way of Neuroscience and Cognitive Science and genetic research into the causes of stuttering. He has a Master of Science in Communicative Disorders from San Francisco State University. In addition to running the San Francisco Speech and Fluency Center (https://sfstutteringhelp.com/about-bailey/), he also has experience teaching a course on Fluency Disorders to budding SLPs.

- Matt Maxion is a speech-language pathology graduate student at Cal State East Bay. He was born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area and started stuttering at age 5. He identified himself as a covert stutter, but is now more open to stuttering unapologetically. He leads a monthly support group for people who stutter within the Communication Sciences and Disorders department at Cal State East Bay.

This course is offered for 0.4 ASHA CEUs (Intermediate level, Professional Area)
