Minimum Wage Threat

Minimum wage threatens some students who work part-time jobs. The current minimum wage is $7.25 per hour, but it is expected to increase to $10.50 per hour by 2023.

According to Schmick, at the Pioneer Bookstore, students are concerned about the rising price of textbooks.

Students also can shop online through the bookstore's website or call manager Joanne Chung said that the books on their website are cheaper than those in the bookstore.

Then there are online books, which are cheaper than those in the bookstore. Students who want to save money can buy online and have the books sent to them.

Students who are not sure if they should buy a book online, they can check the availability of the book by searching for it on the website.

Booksellers help students save approximately $600,000 a year. There is a Blue Book Listing similar to those used to price used cars that the Pioneer Bookstore uses when buy-back time comes.

The minimum wage increases will not have a huge impact on students who already have jobs, but it will affect those who are just starting to work.
