CSUH To Present ‘A Chorus Line’

By Kristen Daniels

The Cal State Hayward Theatre and Dance Department production of “A Chorus Line” opens Friday for a two-week run at the CSU Hayward Theatre. Tickets are $10 for students and $20 for the public.

Theater Professor Armando Llacuna, a kinesiology professor and director of productions at CSU Hayward, said, “It was determined that I think they picked the right person, so he said, ‘I’m having a blast. It will all be over in about two weeks.’ I’m going to miss these guys.”

Aki Gandhi-Blond, also in the show, is a CSU alumni whose double major was voice and harp. Donna Kugel-Chan, “A Chorus Line” veteran, plays Cassie. She has done the musical seven times, according to Llacuna.

The CSU Alumni Association and Friends of the Arts will hold a reception before the March 7 show and will serve a New York style deli buffet. Admission is $18 to $25. Persons wishing information can call (510) 885-4110. Ticket information is available at (510) 885-4837.

The play was about.

Light refreshments will be served. Free and open to the public.

See you in March!!!