For Prague Performance

Students Alexe Herrera and Yuriko Dominieva performed in the Prague dance festival, “Prague Spring,” from April 24 through May 10. The festival was held at the Theatre Karlin, part of the International Prague Fringe and Dance Festival.

The Festival, which is known as the “other” dance festival in Prague, Czechoslovakia, offered a variety of dance performances in an intimate 500-seat theater. The festival, comprised eight student members of the Cal State Hayward dance company, who performed in the International Prague Fringe and Dance Festival, “The Other.”

The event is known as the world’s second largest contemporary dance competition. The group toured the Czech Republic and performed in various Prague theaters.

The Cal State Hayward dance company performed with eight student members, who accompanied eight student members of the Czech Dance Festival under the direction of Prof. Arek Radek.

The dance company performed in the Prague Fringe Festival, held in the Czech Republic, which is known as the world’s second largest contemporary dance festival.

The group performed in various Prague theaters, including at the Theatre Karlin, part of the International Prague Fringe and Dance Festival.

The dancers performed in a variety of venues, including theaters and other performance spaces, with a focus on contemporary dance and interdisciplinary art forms.

The Prague Spring festival is known as the “other” dance festival, in addition to the Prague Festival that is associated with the Prague Spring classical music festival.

The festival features a diverse range of dance styles, including modern, contemporary, and experimental dance, with performances by both established and up-and-coming dance companies from around the world.

The festival is known for its intimate and highly charged performances, featuring a mix of classical and contemporary works, with an emphasis on innovation and experimentation in dance.

The festival is one of the largest contemporary dance festivals in Europe, attracting dancers and audiences from across the continent, as well as international participants.

The Prague Spring festival takes place annually in Prague, Czech Republic, and is held concurrently with the Prague Festival, an internationally renowned classical music festival.
