CSU Execs Get 12 Percent Pay Raise

Flower Staff Report

Despite opposition from university employee unions, the state student association and other organizations and by the state student association, the California Board of Trustees, in a statement prior to the September 10 meeting, voted to give the system’s top executives and university presidents at 22 of the system’s highest paid employees a package of raises that the board plans to implement in the next fiscal year.

The increases, which range from 9.5 percent to 12.9 percent, bring the total salary increase given to CSU executives to 10.5 percent in the last two years.

"This action today makes it very clear that even our top executives are on the right track and that this board seems determined to follow through on the president's plan for a 12 percent raise for the next fiscal year," said President F. James C. Haney, in a memo to the staff last week.

The university's top officials said that the raises are needed to insure that the CSU system can continue to attract and keep talented personnel.

Serving California State University, East Bay

Free

Who is this Man Smiling? Could it be his $44,000 pay increase?

[Photo/Office of the President]

Notice Something Different About Your Classroom Surroundings?

Local Residents to Discuss Use of Area Route 238

By Tom Jeffus/Senior Staff Writer

All the quarter begins, changes will be everywhere, but to those who work on a land use study to change weight, height, and width of Cal State’s roadways, the project is a familiar sight. The initial community meeting for the Route 238 Corridors land study will be held Wednesday, October 3. The city of Hayward is working with a group of consultants hired by the city to study the area and some of the current problems and solutions to the problems that have never previously been available to all interviews.

The new furniture is part of a classroom improvement project that began last spring. Among other things, broken windows and toilets on both campuses were replaced as part of the project, and every piece of furniture had to be replaced.

According to university President Mo Qayoumi, was ranked in the lower third of Cal State East Bay’s own president, Mo Qayoumi, and the highest paid employees.

The university's top officials said the raises are needed to make sure the CSU system can continue to attract and keep talented personnel.

Football Staff Report

Despite opposition from university employee unions, the state student association and other organizations and by the state student association, the California Board of Trustees, in a statement prior to the September 10 meeting, voted to give the system’s top executives and university presidents at 22 of the system’s highest paid employees a package of raises that the board plans to implement in the next fiscal year.

The increases, which range from 9.5 percent to 12.9 percent, bring the total salary increase given to CSU executives to 10.5 percent in the last two years.

"This action today makes it very clear that even our top executives are on the right track and that this board seems determined to follow through on the president's plan for a 12 percent raise for the next fiscal year," said President F. James C. Haney, in a memo to the staff last week.

The university's top officials said that the raises are needed to insure that the CSU system can continue to attract and keep talented personnel.

Serving California State University, East Bay

Free

Who is this Man Smiling? Could it be his $44,000 pay increase?

[Photo/Office of the President]

Notice Something Different About Your Classroom Surroundings?

Local Residents to Discuss Use of Area Route 238

By Tom Jeffus/Senior Staff Writer

All the quarter begins, changes will be everywhere, but to those who work on a land use study to change weight, height, and width of Cal State’s roadways, the project is a familiar sight. The initial community meeting for the Route 238 Corridors land study will be held Wednesday, October 3. The city of Hayward is working with a group of consultants hired by the city to study the area and some of the current problems and solutions to the problems that have never previously been available to all interviews.

The new furniture is part of a classroom improvement project that began last spring. Among other things, broken windows and toilets on both campuses were replaced as part of the project, and every piece of furniture had to be replaced.

According to university President Mo Qayoumi, was ranked in the lower third of Cal State East Bay’s own president, Mo Qayoumi, and the highest paid employees.

The university's top officials said the raises are needed to make sure the CSU system can continue to attract and keep talented personnel.