Welcome to San Diego State University and the 37th Annual CSU Student Research Competition!

This prestigious event showcases excellence in scholarly research and creative activity by recognizing the outstanding achievements of our remarkable students across all 23 CSU universities. Today, we celebrate your ingenuity, limitless curiosity and insatiable drive to unlock doors to new and exciting ideas.

For nearly four decades, the CSU Student Research Competition has provided an opportunity for students like you to demonstrate what you have learned and accomplished in the presence of faculty, outside experts and practitioners, and your peers. The projects highlighted in this year’s competition are as diverse as our gifted scholars and span the fields of public health, mathematics, the arts, humanities, sciences, education, business, engineering, social sciences and more.

Research programs across the CSU are uncovering important discoveries and addressing our state’s most pressing issues while providing unique opportunities for students to develop new skills, seek a deeper understanding of their fields and foster meaningful relationships that often last a lifetime.

As this is the first time in three years that we’ve been able to hold this event in person, I encourage you to fully embrace this opportunity to engage with attendees from a multitude of backgrounds and academic disciplines. You will undoubtedly meet like-minded individuals with fresh perspectives who can help refine, expand or further inspire your work.

I also extend my heartfelt gratitude to the faculty and staff at our universities who mentor the CSU’s students in their research, scholarship and creative pursuits. You are cultivating the next generation of leaders and innovators whose talents and discoveries will positively impact California, the nation and the world.

Congratulations to all, and best of luck to this year’s competitors.

Jolene Koester, Ph D
On behalf of the students, faculty, staff and nearly half a million alumni of the San Diego State University community, I welcome you to our beautiful city and campus for the 37th annual California State University Student Research Competition.

It is an especially fitting year for SDSU to host the competition, as our commitment to research has never been stronger. Last year was a record-breaker, with SDSU faculty receiving $164.5 million in major research grants, a first in our 125-year history. And, this year, we will break ground on a new $1.5-billion-square-foot Innovation District at SDSU Mission Valley. It will be a hotbed for research and partnerships with industry-leading businesses, and a launchpad for our students into exciting, meaningful and in-demand careers.

As I look at this year’s competition, my excitement and pride extends to all of the student researchers who join us from across the CSU system. I confess that I will be rooting for our SDSU contingent to keep its share of the awards in San Diego, just as I cheer on our Aztecs in every competition. I also recognize, however, that this is an opportunity for us to come together as one CSU to showcase the depth and quality of work taking place in the largest and most diverse higher-education system in the United States. Good luck to you all!

Finally, in welcoming faculty, staff and students to this competition, I know I am speaking to some of the fine educators in the country, and to a group of future community and business leaders who are dedicated to improving themselves and our society. While good-spirited competitions are rewarding on their own, each of you is already worthy of celebration for what brought you here. Your hard work, your dedication, and your critical thought are recognized, and your passion for your subject is evident. I have the highest confidence in each of you.

Congratulations again, and enjoy your time in San Diego.

Adela de la Torre, Ph.D.
Welcome to the 37th Annual California State University Student Research Competition! On behalf of the faculty, staff and students at San Diego State University, we are honored to be hosting this showcase of the incredible advancements and exciting ideas that are generated across our state every day.

Behind each undergraduate and graduate student presenting this weekend is a team of faculty, staff, mentors, families, and friends. Their support has shaped these students into researchers and scholars whose findings will undoubtedly create new pieces of art and music, heal communities, protect ecosystems, revolutionize industries and solve perennial puzzles. We thank them for transforming the lives of our scholars.

I would also like to thank Drs. Alicia Kinoshita and Mark B Reed, as well as Alex Munoz, Kate Hatcher and all the dedicated staff in our Division for Research and Innovation, for the time and energy they devoted to organizing this phenomenal event. Our students would not be able to shine as brightly without them.

Last, but certainly not least, I would like to congratulate all of the participants on their hard work. This competition is not only a chance to celebrate your curiosity and persistence but also a wonderful opportunity to learn from and meet fellow researchers. I hope you enjoy the event and wherever your research may lead you.

Hala Madanat, Ph D
My name is Thi Kieu Trang Dang, and I am a designer/student based in San Diego. I am originally from Vietnam, and I came to the US to obtain my B.A. in Graphic Design. I specialize in typography, illustration, and digital marketing design. Ever since I was young, I always wanted to follow a creative career, which would eventually lead me to join SDSU. One of the reasons why I pursued a more artistic education was my interest in comic books. I hope to polish my graphic design skills in order to create my comic books in the future.

For this year’s CSU Student Research Competition at SDSU, I wanted to create a design that reflects our university and the many fields of study. The CSU logo has the letter “C” modified following the shape and texture of the sun ray, representing California. It also connects to the symbol of the Hepner Hall arch of SDSU. For the poster, it consists of a collage of free form illustrations in combination with icons ranging from science to art, appealing to all subjects and majors across California. The key words consisting of innovation, discovery, experience, etc. are integrated with the illustration in order to clarify the message of the event and to add interest to the illustration.
