

Memorandum

To: All Credential Candidates at California State University, East Bay
From: Laty Johnson, Director, Credential Student Service Center
Date: January 31, 2013
Re: Santa Clara LEA/Lee Clark and Timeline on US Constitution Exams

---

This memo is a reminder that the United States Constitution exam from Santa Clara LEA/Lee Clark is not valid for credentialing purposes if taken after January 1, 2013.

An examination in the US Constitution that is not verified by a regionally-accredited college or university may be accepted to satisfy the US Constitution credential requirement as long as the examination is passed on or before January 1, 2013 and is used for certification purposes by July 1, 2013. After July 1, 2013, only passage of US Constitution examinations verified by a regionally-accredited college or university will be acceptable for certification purposes.

Please see the important dates from CTC's Coded Correspondence 11-01: US Constitution Requirement.

Important Dates:

January 1, 2013 – Last date a US Constitution examination taken at entities other than those specified in statute may be used for credentialing purposes

July 1, 2013 – Last date an application may be submitted with a US Constitution examination score to use for credentialing purposes taken at entities other than those specified in statute provided the examination was passed on or before January 1, 2013
